The photograph below shows another view of the Gatton Sports Centre taken by cousin Frank Toomey. It provides a different perspective of the reunion venue.

The photograph above shows the camping area at the rear of the Gatton Sports Centre. This is the place where you can park and if you have a caravan, setup it up for the night. The cost is $15.00 per site and there are toilets and showers available.

Some History of Gatton...

Major Edmund Lockyer explored the Gatton area around 1825 when he passed through the area (Lockyer Creek was named after him). His instructions were to explore the Brisbane River and, in a small boat, managed to reach the present site of Ipswich, where he discovered the Stanley River and found coal. In the 1840's, the area was taken up after land around Moreton Bay was opened up to free settlers. On 13th April 1855, the village of Gatton (probably named after Gatton in Roxburghshire, Scotland) was gazetted, and by 1858 it had become a major stopover point on the road from Brisbane to the Darling Downs. Gatton was also a changeover point for the horses on the Royal Mail. Town allotments went on sale in 1860's after the town had been officially surveyed in 1859. In 1875, the railway line from Ipswich had reached Gatton and the town expanded rapidly as a service centre for the surrounding farms. These days, Gatton lies in the heart of a rich farming area and renowned for its potatoes, onions, and vegetables because of the fertile black soil. This produce finds ready buyers in the Brisbane markets. The area is also well known for its beef and dairy industries.

Gatton Historical Village

The Gatton Historical Village is keeping local history alive, preserving heritage buildings and memorabilia on the southern border of Lake Apex Park. A highlight for train enthusiasts is the Spring Bluff Railway, a heritage listed site where you can relax and picnic in the landscaped gardens and learn about its colourful history.
